

Seeking Volunteer HR Writers for Coffee Shop HR

The bold, the fresh, and the people who aren't afraid to talk about HR

What are we looking for?

Enthusiastic volunteer writers dedicated to sharing perspectives on HR practices and issues.

You are not required to work in the human resources field to volunteer as an HR Writer, but please be aware that HR topics are the focus of Coffee Shop HR.

Seeking bold writers who care about producing quality pieces based on personal experience and/or research. We create a dialogue; we don't just post articles.

What is our commitment to you?

Coffee Shop HR is committed to managing a professional site centered on human resources practices and issues.

Your articles will be posted within 30 days of being received, and will be shared on LinkedIn, Facebook and Twitter.

Your picture and profile will appear on our site, and your work will be posted on the coffeeshophr.com homepage.

What are you looking for?

An opportunity to share your unique ideas and writing talent with a broad audience. Build a positive online presence in a professional manner.

Your creativity shows in your writing, and you're looking for a space to share your talent.

You either seek the autonomy to write about any HR-related topic, or prefer to be given a provoking topic to discuss.

What is your commitment to us?

You commit to volunteering for four months in succession, submitting one original piece each month.

You can either create your own HR-related topics or respond to pre-determined questions through our Coffee Shop HR World Cafés.

You accept that any work submitted will be posted on coffeeshophr.com at the discretion of the Managing Editor, and has not been previously posted anywhere else. You may refer to other pieces you've written, but you will not submit work that has been previously published.

To apply, email your resume to coffeeshophr@yahoo.com. Be sure to explain what interests you about this volunteer position, and suggest one Coffee Shop HR World Café topic.

Deadline for applications is October 1, 2013
